SUMMER READING PROGRAM

Ages

Students entering grades 2-8 in Fall 2008.

Program Description

Elms College is pleased to announce its eighteenth annual summer reading program designed to serve children who are having reading difficulties. Staffed by experienced teachers who are finishing licensure requirements as Reading Specialists within the Master of Arts in Teaching program plus members of the college faculty. During the program, each child's needs will be carefully assessed so that a program of individualized learning activities can be planned. At the conclusion of the program a written report will describe the student's strengths and weaknesses and provide recommendations to parents and future teachers.

Once again, an MCAS preparation component is being added for students who will be in the third grade or above in the fall of 2008. Reading and writing tasks that mirror those typically found on the MCAS will be worked with for a portion of each week. The goals of these lessons will be to improve silent reading comprehension of both fiction and nonfiction and to improve expository writing skills. Test-taking skills will also be addressed.
